SPECIAL CHILDREN'S COMMITTEE

Hi All,

Another great month for the SCC. We started off with a good spaghetti dinner, THANK YOU, Donnie, Richie B, Janet And Kathy for another wonderful night. We found our ambassador Charlotte as you see her biography in the bulletin. The mailing for the charity ball will be going out soon. Let's all come out to support Charlotte. We had our Christmas party and what a turnout! Thank you to Santa, the Red Light Kings, the entire kitchen staff, the ladies, and Al Smith for taking all the photographs and everyone else who was here to assist. It takes a lot of great people to pull off that party, THANK YOU ALL.

We have our spaghetti dinner on 1/8 which will be Lasagna by Richie Bryk, come on out to support the SCC.

Fraternally,
Tom Cribbin, SCC Chairman

~ Give a little to make a Big impact ~

Middletown Elks is hosting a benefit on February 15, 2019 for one of our own, Adam Fairhurst.

Adam was born and raised in Belford, NJ. He is a 46 year old gentleman who still has so much life to live. He is married to Tricia and together they have two boys, Kyle and Ryan, both attending Middletown High School North. He is a Middletown Elk and is also a member of Belford Engine Fire Company. He has been a volunteer fire fighter for the last 27 years ~ well more than half of his life.

Over the summer, Adam was diagnosed with glioblastoma, an incurable brain cancer. Over the past 4 months he has already undergone brain surgery, radiation and chemotherapy. This first round of treatment wasn't as successful as we hoped but he was a good candidate for a newer type of treatment so we're hopeful that he'll have a better response this time around. He remains strong and positive and we couldn't be prouder of how he is handling this unfortunate hand he's been dealt.

Adam has selflessly given his time to our community and now we are kindly asking that you consider making a donation in his name. Proceeds will help offset the cost of the lifelong treatment he will need, as well as other associated costs that are building up. No contribution is too small!

Thank you in advance for your support.

MIDDLETOWN ELKS #2179
SPECIAL CHILD - CHARLOTTE ANNE WALDRON
MARCH 7, 2020

Charlotte Anne Waldron was born on January 17, 2010 after a healthy pregnancy and unscheduled cesarean section delivery. She was a very healthy baby and was just like a little doll. Little did I know at the time that her sweet, easy going disposition was actually the very first sign of her autism. She was always happy and content, and still carries that same disposition at ten years old today. She hit all of her milestones on time in her first year. Charlotte was very engaged with mom and dad, was very loving and affectionate, playful, inquisitive, and was really just an absolute joy.

It was around her second birthday that things didn't seem to be progressing typically. I always knew she was a little quirky and saw the world differently. However, I never thought it was autism. She was nothing like I thought an autistic toddler to be. I pictured a child who was completely disengaged, unloving, emotionally detached, and rocking in a corner. She was none of those things. She spoke her first words on time, but her first word was "Dora", not mommy or daddy. And all of her words were labeling, identifying, numbers and letters, or repeating phrases from songs or tv shows. She wasn't putting two words together. When in a group of peers, she would retreat and withdraw from them, clinging to familiar adults instead. At the encouragement of family members, Charlotte was taken to a neurodevelopmental pediatrician, where she was immediately diagnosed with autism spectrum disorder. She began early intervention therapies followed by preschool disabled program with very, very slow progress. She then began ABA therapy at home, again with little noticeable progress. Today, she is almost nonverbal, but speaks with more purpose when she does speak. And she sometimes comes out in full sentences, and when she does, she says things that are a much needed reminder that she's got it all in there. She knows and feels everything that is going on. I describe it as a radio with bad reception. There are moments in between the static that you can hear the beautiful song, and then it's gone again.

The last year and a half Charlotte has made an amazing breakthrough and began to read. I personally believe she's been able to do it for a long time and just could not show us. At the age of 18 months, she could tell you all the letters of the alphabet, both upper and lower cases, in and out of order. She was obsessed with reading letters off of everything, everywhere we went. I remember thinking "she is so smart". I was not wrong. She just sees the world through a different filter. And that filter is filled with static and sensory overload. I am so incredibly proud of her progress in reading, and it gives me hope that she will one day be able to communicate through typing her thoughts.

Today Charlotte is maturing into a sweet, angelic, happy little girl. She has discovered her love for the theatre, horseback riding, the ocean, swimming, and being surrounded by other special needs children. She lights up when she sees a room full of people who are like her and accept her. Thankfully, the Middletown Elks have been able to provide that for her and we are so grateful.

Charlotte seems to have a sense for other special needs children and their parents, often choosing adults who have a special needs child and greeting them with one of her special hugs. Often times it is a stranger, and there is no way she could have known that he/she is a special needs parent. This always shocks me. I recall one special needs event we attended, there was a little blind girl who was trying to talk to her. At the end of the event, she reached over and touched her hand and held it. Then gave her a hug. She must have known the little girl could not see her, so she touched her. She often surprises me with what she seems to just know. Sometimes she will chose someone at random to hug. And very often it turns out to be someone who really needed it.

When I tell people that I have a child with autism, I often hear things like "I'm sorry". I am not sorry, nor am I sad. When I decided to be a mother, I knew that I wanted a child to love and that I would not be able to choose what child I was given. I was given the purest, most gentle and innocent soul. Even with the frustrations that come with Charlotte's autism, she has never lashed out or tried to hurt anyone else. She gives the most amazing hugs. She hugs with her whole body and squeezes so tight, that it's like for that moment, any trouble you have melts away. She is a constant reminder for us all to appreciate the little things in life. She feels everything ten fold due to her sensory processing overload. This can be a beautiful thing, like looking through the world with a magnifying glass. Every color, light, sound, and feeling can be more beautiful to her than anyone else and it can be uplifting to watch. She has made everyone in her life more kind, more open, and more accepting of others, and introduced me to a beautiful world of wonderful people. I'm glad I was chosen to be her mother. While I wouldn't cure her autism because it would take away who she is, I do wish she was able to communicate more with me and everyone else so we can understand what's locked up inside that beautiful mind of hers. I'm hopeful that someday she will be able to tell us, but until then my goal is to make sure that she lives her life to the fullest in this world that is wired so differently than her, and also to show the world how to understand my daughter.

Madame President's Message

Hello Ladies,

Such a wonderful event – The Ladies Christmas Party! Thank you Nancy Brandine and Liz Revill for chairing this event. Prizes and revelry, conversations and music – thanks for the memories. It was really great to see so many familiar faces.

Our most solemn event, the Elks Memorial Day, was beautiful as usual. Each past member represented, will be held in our hearts and minds with the highest regard. Thank you to those who attended. Thank you Danny Maloney for bringing us all together.

Happy New Year! So many events, so little time. The Elks New Year's Eve Party at the lodge – starring the CLAM DIGGERS – is Dec 31. Don't miss out.

Our STEAL BINGO (January 26) is fast approaching. Call Mary Bryk for tickets – get your tables ready. February 7 is the Ladies Gift Auction – contact Linda Bennett for tickets or if you have donations.

There is always something going on at the lodge - check the flyers at the lodge and don't forget SUNDAY FOOTBALL.

I hope Santa was good to you, and that the New Year brings you much joy and happiness.

Our next meeting is January 29, 2020 at 7:30pm.

Snapple Fact #724 A pineapple is neither an apple or a pine. It is, in fact, a large berry.
